YAF SWAMY LOOKS BACK AT A CHAOTIC YEAR

WITH THEIR NEW SINGLE:

2020

STREAM

Mexico City-based experimental indie band YAF SWAMY continue to explore their genre-bending sound through their new single “2020”, a chaotic song that combines elements of hyper-pop, trap inspired beats, and corrosive synthwave.

Following the release of their first project YERBO FLASHBACKS in 2020, an exploration of artificial intelligence technology in writing and producing music, Yaf Swamy takes their music to a new direction with their new single “2020.”

The new track revisits lyrics originally written by vocalist Santiago Cueto in 2019 as he envisioned the dawn of the 2020s, with new musical arrangements that take inspiration from A. G. Cook’s violent synths to Playboi Carti’s melodic and heavy 808s to create a bizarrely saturated atmosphere that encompasses the hyper-tense year that 2020 was.

BIO

YAF SWAMY came to life in 2019, when Maximo Campo and Santiago Cueto met in Mexico City. Their shared interests in experimental production techniques and genres including hyperpop, outsider, and new wave drew them together to start playing music at a studio in the neighborhood of Santa Maria la Rivera.

Eventually, Jaycie Litteral, who was a former bandmate of Cueto in Austin-based anti-folk band Tomy Balmi, joined the band later that year.

YAF SWAMY's debut EP YERBO FLASHBACKS came out September 2020. The project was an exploration of how artificial intelligence can be used to create music through text generators and algorithmic music production software.
